FIRST WARD ASKS THAT ALL SCRAP BE TAKEN TO ONE PILE

Heap Being Built at Mill and Pond Streets To Be Collected Tomorrow

GOAL NOT YET REACHED

Sixth Ward Hauled Several
More Tons To Heap
Last Night

The figures for the tonnage of scrap put into the Victory Scrap Pile here are still incomplete. Due to a change in the system of checking the weights of the loads the figures have not been completely tabulated.

Figures for some of the loads of scrap delivered are available while in some instances the net weight has not been definitely obtained and therefore the compilation of the tonnage turned in by each district is again omitted by the Courier.

As soon as the figures are officially released the Courier will publish them. The sixth ward delivered several more tons to the pile on Wednesday evening, as well as last night.

The fourth ward delivered a number of tons on Wednesday night.

Any residents of the first ward who have scrap metal or rubber to donate to the scrap drive, are asked to place it on the pile at Pond and Mill streets, from where it will be collected on Saturday morning.

The first ward workers are eager to make the final clean-up of all scrap in their district and request the full co-operation of the public.

The pile at Mill and Pond streets has been increasing in size daily and it is expected that by tomorrow morning it will be a huge affair.

America's war effort must be increased to make certain that victory shall not be delayed one day longer than necessary. This calls for production all along the line, and production calls for steel. Ninety per cent of some types of steel consists of scrap. That's why so much emphasis is being placed upon the necessity for obtaining every pound of scrap metal available.

In and around dwellings and business places, on farms and elsewhere are tons of scrap metal that have been overlooked and permitted to accumulate. Every bit of this scrap belongs in slacker class if nobody puts it to work. Scrap is a part of the civilian war assembly line, urgently in demand as a critical material the value of which can not be measured in dollars and cents. Fighting men at the front may owe their lives and the success of

Attu and Agattu Show No Signs of Occupancy

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(INS)—The Navy Department has stated that recent reconnaissance of the two westernmost Aleutian Islands, Attu and Agattu, show no signs of "enemy occupancy or activity." Last June the Japanese seized these islands together with Kiska. This latter island is said to have one of the finest harbors in the North Pacific. But Attu and Agattu are barren, precipitous, and devoid of harbor facilities. It has been stated that even small emergency landing fields could not be constructed on them.

If the islands of Attu and Agattu are not susceptible to military use, either as supply bases or for defense, it is not surprising that the Japanese have abandoned them under our continuous bombing attacks. There can be no doubt but that the armed forces of the United States now intend to eliminate the Japanese threat occasioned by their occupancy of these westernmost islands.

W. Loory, Member of FBI, Addresses Junior Club

A member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, W. Loory, addressed members of the Junior Travel Club in the club home last evening.

Mr. Loory, who explained the duties and told of some activities of the FBI, urged upon the young women the importance of being on the alert for protection of the nation in the present times. He stressed the need of being watchful, "but not overly suspicious." Mrs. Clement McCarron presided at the meeting. Plans were made for a card party to be held on November 19th. This affair will benefit the United Service Organizations, and will take place in the club home on Cedar street. Refreshments were served, the committee including: Mrs. Robert Wright, Miss Thelma Weik, Miss Katherine Weik, Mrs. Marian Schultz.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All
In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY REPORTERS

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Staudenmayer, formerly of Philadelphia, but for the past 20 years residents of Hilltown township will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at the "Fountain House," Doylestown. Their children, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Langton, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Staudenmayer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Staudenmayer, and William Staudenmayer; also their grandchildren and great-grandchildren will be present.

There will be four generations represented at this occasion.

Floodlight equipment on the Sellersville-Perkasie high school football field was purchased this week by the joint school board.

The lights have been the property of the Sellersville Greenjackets, a semi-professional football team that has been playing in the community for a number of years.

Robert K. Shelly and Lloyd Frederick represented the team at the school board meeting, and asked the board to purchase the equipment. They said that the drafting of men has taken away the football material, and the club is disbanding.

Lights were installed at a cost of $2,000. The club sold them to the school district for $899. The board agreed that in the event the club reorganizes, it will be credited with the difference between the cost and the selling price in the use of the field without cost.

A man who walked away during a blackout after an auxiliary policeman had ordered him to stand inside a service station at Sellersville was jailed on Monday.

The defendant, Vincent Marsicano, inspector at the United States Gauge Company plant, was given the choice of paying a $50 fine or going to the County Prison for ten days. He elected to go to jail.

The offense occurred on September

Advance Plans For Attack Against East

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—Plans are moving ahead rapidly for large-scale British and American air attacks against Burma, Indo-China and eventually Japan, a new Delhi dispatch to the News Chronicle said today.

Armies of Indian workmen are now engaged in ground work to receive hundreds of United States war planes, it was said.

The strength of the American Air Force in India was said to have developed considerably and miracles of organization have been performed since spring.

The WPB Cleanup

Washington, Oct. 8. THE more it is viewed the more the recent reorganization within the War Production Board seems about the best thing that has happened in Washington for a long while. It is not only that for the first time the really top men in industry have been put in positions where they can do effective work but certain very vital work has been taken out of incompetent hands.

NEW VIGOR has come in with the new men, but, better still, there is a clearer sense of direction, more knowledge of what it is all about. It will take, it is said, between thirty and sixty days to clear up the mess into which things have

"SUCKERS ARE IMPORTANT GUYS"

Says An Observer Who Knows

So I'm a sucker, am I? Well, as long as I AM a sucker the country can be mighty thankful, for the moment I stop being a sucker and become an active part of the armed forces of America, war will have come to the United States on enemy wings.

I am a volunteer civilian observer of the Aircraft Warning Service of the U. S. Army, a sucker to some of the folks on the outside looking in. I spend hours developing "spotter's neck" and "tower climber's calves" for nothing—thank God. I froze during long nights last winter; I stood in rain peering into weather listed as zero-zero; I spent hours listening for nothing, in weather when even the birds were on instruments.

I have reported the same old transports, the same Army planes, the same Cnbs and Wacos. I have worn enough clothes to start a rummage sale and often looked like one, those long winter watches last February.

Some of the "temporary patriots" dropped out after a few weeks. But me, I'll stay with the A. W. S., thank you, and here's why:

I like to feel I'm an important cog in the vast machinery of America's defenses. Silly, isn't it, but it's true. The minute I take over the watch I become for a few short hours just that important. I'm no longer a clerk, an editor, a mechanic, a gardener or a minister. I'm an important guy! Thousands of men and millions of dollars worth of equipment are waiting for MY call to action.

Hundreds of thousands of wardens, fire watchers, auxiliary police and firemen can sleep peacefully as long as I am AWAKE AND ON THE JOB, and my wife and little girl can go to the market, and to school, in safety as long as you other spotters are on the job during the daylight hours.

At the "unknown address" trained experts are alert for MY phone call. I'm the one the folks with the O. C. D. arm bands depend upon. Their splendid training and hours of study will never be called into action unless some chap like me gives the word. Not an interceptor plane of the Interceptor Command will leave the ground in combat unless some spotter like myself gives the word. Why, I can even get Generals out of bed in the middle of the night, and be thanked for it.

If "suckers" can be that important and being one means we never have to give that fatal report of MANY, MULTI-MOTOR, VERY HIGH, SEEN, HAZEL, ONE ONE, NORTHEAST, FIVE MILES, SOUTH, I'll gladly BE one for the duration.

MEN URGENTLY NEEDED AS AIRCRAFT SPOTTERS

Those in Charge of Detail Here
Handicapped in Sufficient
Personnel

OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

Men are urgently needed to man the Aircraft Warning Spotters Post here. This war-time activity is a very important one, and those in charge have been considerably handicapped in organizing a personnel sufficiently large to maintain a 24-hour watch.

This condition existing here also prevails in other communities of comparable size, and it has come to the attention of General Hugh S. Grant, 3d, Chief, Protection Branch, Office of Civilian Defense, Washington, D. C.

"LOCAL DEFENSE ORGANIZATION" ABLY DISCUSSED BY CHIEF WARDEN HEALEY BEFORE VOLUNTEER BRISTOL WORKERS

"Local Defense Organization" is the title of an address delivered Tuesday night at a meeting of the Red Cross disaster committee and the air raid wardens and emergency police of Bristol Borough. This is one of a series of talks being given to civilian defense groups by Chief Air Raid Warden John E. Healey.

The fall of France shocked the United States into the beginnings of organized civilian defense. In August, 1940, there was established in the office of the Council of National Defense, a Division of State and Local Co-operation. A pamphlet of this organization, issued August 2nd, outlined the first concerted plan for joining federal, state, and local effort in developing the national defense program.

By April 12, 1941, Councils of Defense, or Defense Co-ordinators, had been established in 44 states and in more than 1,000 communities, where the hectic growth of national defense had imposed unaccustomed burdens. District or regional councils were also established in certain areas. But much of the program existed only on paper, and lacked both co-ordination and public enthusiasm.

On May 20, 1941, Fiorello LaGuardia, mayor of New York City, became, by presidential order, Director of the Office of Civilian Defense. Upon him and his organization was placed the responsibility of pooling and galvanizing the defense effort of the 48 states and the District of Columbia into a definite, aggressive pattern of civilian participation. At the present time, Director LaGuardia has been succeeded by James M. Landis, Dean of Harvard Law School, who has been appointed active executive of the organization.

We can be thankful that we had made a national organizational start in civilian defense well in advance of our entry into this World War. Public indifference and governmental inertia—or in other words, politics—hampered its beginnings, but the framework was resting on solid foundations before the fateful seventh of December, 1941.

In this foresighted effort we have learned much, borrowed much, and adapted much from war-tested England which set up an Air Raid Precautions department in the Home Office as far back as 1935. Our own Office of Civilian Defense was set up on the proved assumption that the civilians are first-line combatants and that the principal civilian defensive objective should be the early establishment of an organization which would give the civilian the greatest possible protection and at the same time enable him to participate actively in his own defense.

We cannot expect immediate perfection. What we do have is a nationwide organization which offers everyone of us a means of taking part in our country's defense. The rest is up to the civilians themselves.

The Office of Civilian Defense is primarily a co-ordinating agency, whose principal duty is to tie together the defense activities of the states, the local, and federal governments, especially in the protection of life and property against attack.

Under the OCD, nine regional offices, one for each of the nine Army Corps areas, are established after the English plan, each with a regional director. Headquarters for these nine Civilian Defense areas are in the same cities as the Army Corps Headquarters, viz: Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, Columbus, Chicago, Omaha, San Antonio and San Francisco.

The national office and the regional office are the first links in the civilian defense chain. The State Defense Councils, most of which are headed by the governors, are the third link, and the local organizations, established in some five thousand cities and towns, are the fourth. These state and local units direct the particular defense programs and organize volunteer participation.

The Office of Civilian Defense is unique in American annals, because it envisions the enrollment of the entire population in its own wartime behalf.

In one of his earliest addresses after assuming the directorship of the OCD in May, 1941, Mayor LaGuardia explained the necessity of such an organization.

Rotary Club Honors President On Birthday

A birthday party, election of two new members to the Board of Governors, and an open forum discussion on plans for future community programs, were the main items of interest at the meeting of the Rotary Club held yesterday afternoon in the Elks' Home.

Club president, George Ardrey, was presented with a large birthday cake on the occasion of his 73rd birthday. The presentation was made by John S. Roberts who was dressed as a "chef de cuisine."

Election of E. Keller Fox and Richard W. Fechtenburg to the Board of Governors to fill vacancies was also held.

The open forum program, in charge of Richard W. Fechtenburg, chairman of the Community Service committee, consisted of the completing of details for future community programs.

EXCHANGEITES HEAR OF SERVICE BOARD'S WORK

Percy G. Ford Informs That
650 Have Been Called
From Area

300 OTHERS ENLISTED

The Bristol Exchange Club met last evening in the Elks' Home. President Russell De Long presided.

Percy G. Ford, a member of the local Selective Service Board, and an Exchangeite for many years, was the speaker of the evening. It appeared for a moment as he was introduced, that he would speak to empty chairs, as the members in a spirit of prankishness began to file out. They soon returned, however, and were well rewarded by an informative address.

Mr. Ford spoke of the many fine speakers who had appeared before Exchange in the past, and said that he appreciated the opportunity to speak before the club on the problems and duties of the local board. He brought out the fact that in all matters of both classification and induction, the board is bound by very rigid rules and regulations.

The population of the area governed by the local board is roughly 25,000 people, of which 11,000 are registered in the files of the draft board. Up to the present, 650 men have been inducted from this area, and 300 have volunteered.

"It has been these volunteers who have made it possible for many of you to remain as yet without being called for examination," said Mr. Ford. "This total of 950 men in the armed forces from this area is a splendid representation and we are mighty proud of our three communities," he said.

"If we could have as fine a representation from our people in the work of Civilian defense we would have at least 3,000 men working in some way at home for our boys in the service. There is absolutely no reason why we should not have such a representation when our boys are making many sacrifices for others to stay at home. We all have a job to perform and we should perform it," he remarked with fervor and emphasis.

The many unfair criticisms and complaints from "cranks," both verbal and by letter, to members of the board

WAR DERATION

Rep. Louis Ludlow of Indiana said the other day that the people may as well reconcile themselves to the probability that they are in for a long war. The advice is good, and it goes for Washington as well as for the people.

The war may not last long. It may end next year. But that conjecture is an unstable foundation for war decisions. If the country is to make sure of victory in the shortest possible time, it must act on the assumption that the war will be long and hard. Preparations made on that basis will be prudent not only from a military point of view but will also have a devastating effect on the morale of the enemy.

Many German prisoners testified after the armistice of 1918 that while the German army could have held off through 1918, and was good for another campaign in the spring of 1919, the soldiers gave up because they knew that the United States had done the impossible. It had put a field army of 2,000,000 men in Europe and it had another of the same size on the way. It was also supplying this army with everything that it needed to assure victory. The German soldiers gave up because they saw that they could not win. It was the total power of the United States, not merely the army in Europe, that demoralized and whipped them.

This does not mean, of course, that the country should waste its power now in extravagant financing and a costly but superfluous civilian pay roll burden to show how strong it is. It means that it should make every man and every dollar count. In the long run, it may need every man and every dollar.

The difference between victory and defeat may, indeed, be in the supply of national strength today by waste and incompetency. It is a time for the best men to do their best, both for today and for the long pull.

Goering says the German army will be fed this winter with food stolen from the occupied countries. And after the war there will be food in this country who will say, as other fools did after the last war, that the peace terms are too harsh on the Germans.

War, too, has its funny side. When an Italian "baron" was arrested in New York and interned, he spluttered that the humiliation to him would be avenged by Mussolini after the latter had won the war.

Stalin's enthusiasm for the opening of a second front does not extend to Siberia.

The Great Game of Politics

FROM NOW on, it is said, things will be different. From now on individuals are to count in the WPB only in proportion to their ability to deliver the goods. True, this sort of talk has been heard before, but this time there are evidences that it is more than talk. For example, the whole priorities outfit has been changed for the better. The shortages of raw material, including steel, was not so much the basic trouble as maldistribution. And the maldistribution was due to a silly system of priorities which did not function.

A PRIORITY would be established but the priority was not followed by allocation and, thus, it might just as well not have been established. In brief, the business of priorities was in the hands of people who did not know how to make them stick. Now, priorities are being administered along the lines that were effective in the last war—and already the shortages of raw materials do not seem so formidable. Perfection, of course, will never be attained, but that in two months there will be a very great increase in efficiency is not doubted by those who understand the drastic nature of the changes underway.

THERE WILL still remain the great handicap of the way in which all Governmental agencies are over-manned. There just are too many people employed to operate effectively. The latest official figures give the number of civilians on the Federal pay roll August 1, as 2,327,932. On that date, the Office of Price Administrator, hardly a year old, had 25,938. At the rate they have been going on, the OPA total must now be over 30,000 and the grand total close to 2,500,000. It just does not make sense. Every board and bureau is clogged. There must be 60,000 people here who ought not to be here; men and

"I can promise you honest government, efficient government and a Square Deal. I can offer you a combination of military and civil experience that is at Pennsylvania's command if the voters want it.

"If you are willing to buckle down to the grim business of winning this war . . .

"If you believe this Nation, under God, is worth working for, as well as fighting for . . .

"If you feel that the liberty of every man, woman and child in Pennsylvania should be safeguarded . . .

"Then, if you want an all-out effort for victory, I offer myself as Governor. But if you want ease and sweet words, instead of work and strain and struggle, I am not your man."

women who not only have no useful work to do but interfere with those who have.

THE OUTSTANDING need is for a reduction in personnel. In no other way could as great a contribution be made to efficiency. But instead of reducing, the personnel steadily increases and the effort to reverse the direction is always futile. A short time ago Mr. Elmer Davis, of the OWI, ordered a curtailment of the tremendous publicity output of the Government press agents. For this Mr. Davis merits praise. So far as known, it was the only move to curtail anything since the one made by Secretary Knox nearly a year ago. But, while Mr. Davis eliminated a vast deal of useless and absurd publicity handouts, he has not been able to contract personnel. There are just as many publicity agents as before; the only difference is that they do less work. Apparently Mr. Davis has the authority to curtail production but not the producers.

THAT WILL never be done until the order comes from the top—to wit, from the President. Until and unless he grasps the fact that the swollen size of his governmental organization prevents it from working and takes the step to reduce, no one else can do much about it, and no one else really will try. As things are now, every time a new board or commission is named, more jobs are created and the confusion thickens. There must be a limit somewhere and it would seem that 2,500,000 civilian employees was pretty close to it.

Flowers in House Will Cheer War Winter

War-time economies place a premium on the simple pleasures which can be enjoyed at home, without travel, and at small expense. One of the most effective aids for the gloomy days of winter is a window garden, which continually reminds us of sunny days not far away.

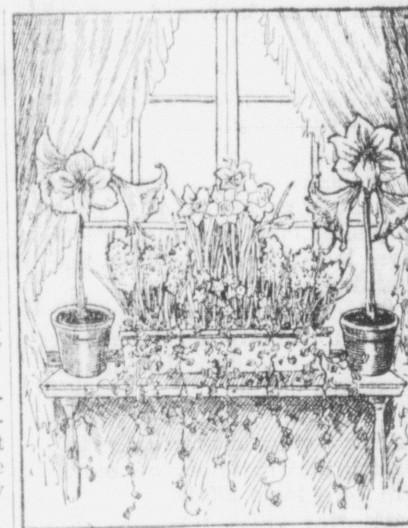

A great variety of flowers may be forced into bloom indoors with little trouble. Arranged on shelves, or in a window box near a sunny window, they will keep fresh throughout the winter the memory of summer days.

Experience in growing flowers indoors is of value in outdoor operations, too. The gardener sees at close hand the progress of the plants, and learns how gratefully they respond to intelligent care.

The easiest plants to grow indoors are the bulbs, both the hardy kinds, which are grown in gardens, and tender varieties which will not stand our winters, but grow vigorously indoors.

Some of them need potting in soil, others can be grown in bowls with fibre, moss, or even pebbles and water. Select them according to the experience you have had, and the attention you are willing to give them. It is easiest to grow those which flower in pebbles and water, but more interesting, and a better test of your gardening skill, to bring into flowers those which require soil.

All bulbs can be grown in soil, a smaller number in fibre, and still fewer in water with pebbles, or moss. To begin with the latter, they include the tender narcissi known as Paper Whites (white), Soleil d'Or, (yellow), and Chinese sacred lilies.

In bulb fibre, which is a mixture of peat and plant food, it is possible to grow in bowls without drainage all the above, together with daffodils, early tulips, crocuses, frezias, calla lilies, grape hyacinths and scillas.

In pots with soil all the above can be grown, together with all garden tulips and narcissi, amaryllis, and by the more skillful, lilies.

"BUYING BEEF"

By Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative) Beef is something you like when it's good, and something you get mad at when you've paid a lot of money for it and then have to work your jaws overtime on it.

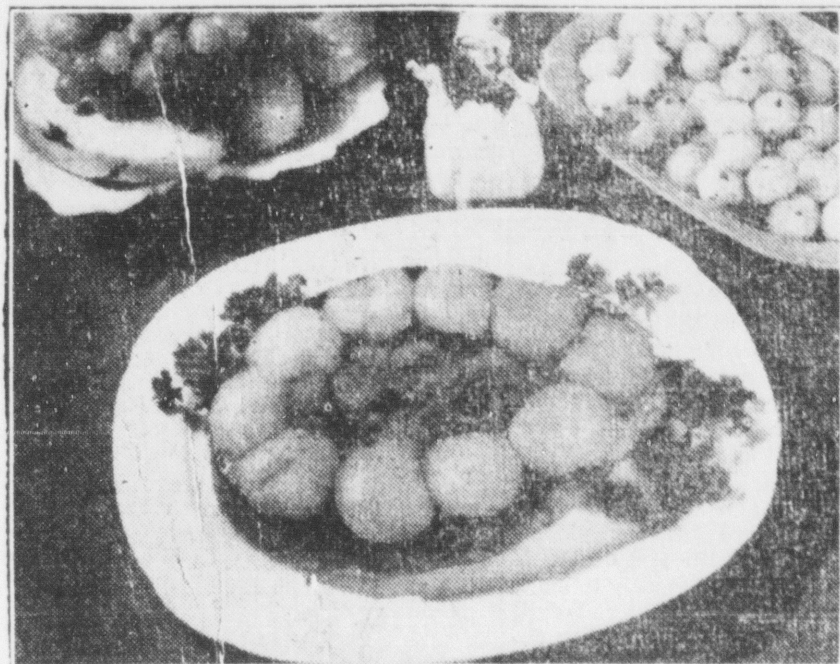

There is a great difference between one steak and another. The man who grows the beef knows it and expects to be paid for his animal accordingly. The man who slaughters the beef knows it, and expects less money for poor quality and more money for good quality. So does the butcher who sells you the beef. And so do you.

But how, before you buy, can you guard against spending dollars for something that should have been dished up in a stew, not dressed up as a dandy?

When the United States Government buys beef for its Allies under Lend-Lease it doesn't guess about the quality of the beef it's getting.

The Government specifies the quality of meat it wants. It orders so many pounds of this quality, and so many pounds of that. Just to make sure that the beef it buys from Packer X rates the same as the beef it buys from Packer Y, it draws up standards of quality to apply to both. It does more than this. It supplies trained experts, employees of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Administration, to grade

HAM AND FRUIT GARNISH

A delicious center cut slice of ham, garnished with apricot halves makes a kindly dish for any meal. It is especially suited for the "meal in a hurry" or for the Sunday evening meal where something tasty and easy to prepare is wanted.

the beef according to these standards. It goes still further, it requires packers to have all beef supplied to the Government stamped to show its quality. That's how the Government buys.

And so do some other consumers, families like yours.

This year about 25 pounds of every 100 pounds of beef sold in your butcher shops if it comes from Federally inspected slaughtered beef, will carry on it the official grading stamp of the Agricultural Marketing Administration.

Under A. M. A. beef grading, there are five quality marks. From top down, they are: U. S. Prime, U. S. Choice, U. S. Good, U. S. Commercial, U. S. Utility.

Very little U. S. Prime or U. S. Choice reaches consumer markets, because relatively little of it is produced. Top quality grade in most stores is U. S. Good, although actually it is third grade according to the Government scale and according to the price farmers receive. Call U. S. Good grade the top grade of beef with some of the cream skimmed off and you have a good working idea of what it is.

These quality grades are easy to spot in stores that sell Government graded beef. The reason is this: When a beef carcass is officially graded by the Government, the grader runs a "ribbon stamp" down the length of the carcass, so that every piece of meat cut from that carcass will show the grade.

Of course grading costs money, but even when the cost of Government grading is passed on to you, it should not come to more than a tiny fraction of a cent per pound.

No Federal Government order requires any farmer, any packer, wholesaler, or butcher to have his beef graded and stamped with these symbols by the Government before he sells it to consumers. This is a voluntary service to use or not use as the trade and consumers demand.

Government is now working nights trying to hold down the cost of living during wartime, and one of its orders makes partial use of the Federal system of meat grading. This is an order from the Office of Price Administration to wholesalers and packers of beef. It requires them to grade all beef according to AMA grade specifications and to stamp at least once on each wholesale cut a grade mark—AA, A, B, or C.

The reason behind such an order as this is easy to understand: OPA has put ceilings over wholesale beef prices and OPA knows that ceiling prices don't mean much unless everyone understands exactly what quality of product they refer to. That's why beef, as it is sold to your butcher, must now come with the new marking.

Beef as it is sold by your butcher also has ceiling prices over it, and each ceiling price must apply to a specific quality as well as to a specific cut of beef. OPA has not required your butcher, however, to have each retail cut marked to show its quality. If you ask him, though, he may show you the wholesale cut from which he takes your meat, and on the wholesale cut you may find an AA, A, B, or C.

Careless buyers of beefsteaks never look at the markings on the meat they buy. Careful buyers look for two things: one, the sanitary stamp of the Government. This is a round stamp which says "U. S. Insp'd. . . ." That tells you nothing about the grade of the meat. It does tell you that the meat was healthy and wholesome when it left the packing plant.

Careful buyers look, next, for the U. S. grade mark which tells them the quality of the meat. When consumers see this marking, they don't have to look for other grade stamps. If they don't see such a marking, they should look for the AA, A, B, or C stamped on the wholesale cut.

Just remember this: You run a good chance of buying a mistake, and paying handsomely for it, every time you select beef without first making sure of the quality you get for your money.

Lewis Given Power to "Purge" CIO Leader

Cincinnati, O.—The 37th annual convention of John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers Union today adopted a resolution giving Lewis power to "purge" the last big CIO leader in the miners' ranks from the UMW.

The resolution gave Lewis authority to conduct an investigation into the affairs of District No. 5 headed by Pat Fagan of Pittsburgh, a close friend of President Phil Murray.

Resolutions also were adopted pledging all out aid to the war effort and urging that the social security age be lowered from 65 to 55 for coal miners.

Italy Claims War Prisoners Mistreated by Allies

London—Italy today followed Germany's lead in claiming mistreatment of war prisoners and threatening reprisals against Allied captives.

In a Rome broadcast heard here by Reuters News Agency, the Italian High Command threatened prompt reprisal for alleged incidents in which groups of Italian prisoners supposedly were murdered by Allied troops.

There were no verifications of these claims from other sources.

More Canadian Troops in Britain

London—Reinforcements of Canadian troops to replace the casualties suffered by that dominion in the Allied commando raid on Dieppe have arrived in Britain, it was officially announced today.

The reinforcements included fresh armored formations and other Canadian units.

Germans Shift Forces Northwest of Stalingrad

Stockholm—The Germans were reported today to have shifted part of their forces from the attack on Stalingrad proper to positions northwest of the city, where Russian troops are blasting through the Nazi lines.

The newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported that the German High Command began moving troops from Stalingrad yesterday in an effort to halt Soviet Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's relief offensive.

If the report is confirmed, it would be the first indication that Timoshenko's offensive has succeeded in its principal object, that of diminishing pressure against the beleaguered Volga city.

Councilmen devoted a part of the evening to discussing the fire signals after a request had been made that a special signal be sounded for first aid workers and representatives of the Red Cross.

Members of Council agreed to arrange with the first aid groups and with the Red Cross to have some of them respond every time the fire siren is sounded.

After a brief discussion Council decided to improve Bill avenue, east of Market street, on the condition that the property owners build curbs and sidewalks.

Street Commissioner J. Frank Atterback announced that 18 tons of sand to be used in case of air raids had been placed in all homes in the borough. He stated also that about 600 of the 1000 homes supplied with sand had containers on the curbs when the trucks making the deliveries arrived.

Secretary Phares Buder was instructed to get prices for a siren to be placed on the police car. He announced also that the sale of electric current at the municipally owned electric light plant during the past month had amounted to $8,801.11, and that the expenses totaled $8,460.17.

Following the investigation of a car-truck collision on Cold Spring Creamery Road about 5.45 Tuesday evening, when a County Seat woman driver was injured, the Pennsylvania Motor Police are looking for a hit-and-run driver.

Private M. H. Aulenbach, of the Doylestown sub-station, who investigated the accident, said a car driven by Mrs. Rose Stewart, 52, Doylestown, was struck by a truck and overturned near the Deffen Riding Academy.

Private Aulenbach said the truck, which is believed to have been printed red, was travelling in the opposite direction and sideswiped the County Seat woman's car.

Martin Auerbach, a farmer, who lives near by and was walking down his lane after having gone for the mail, did not see the accident but he heard the crash and took Mrs. Stewart to the Emergency Hospital, where she was treated.

their all-out effort to the people back home who keep production going.

When there is a lack of scrap the steel plants become idle, production pauses, the war program bogs down, and thousands of miles away some soldier, sailor or marine may wait in vain for the weapons and ammunition that mean the difference between victory and defeat, between life and death. It is every citizen's absolute duty to make another search for any material suitable for the scrap collection. One donation is not enough.

The need for scrap will continue until victory is achieved. Get out the slacker scrap, put it to work and make it an agency that will help shorten and win the war.

We thank Thee, O Blessed God, for the inspired souls of all ages who saw afar the shining city of God, and by faith received the strength to follow their vision. We thank thee for their example, for their suffering of trial and hardship, for their acceptance of reversal and disappointment, for their untiring loyalty to that which they held dear. May we learn from their example, O God, and be loyal to Thee in these difficult days, that when the strife is over we might have established a strong foundation upon which an abiding peace might be established. ## ON THE SCREENS plus the presence of William Powell and Hedy Lamarr, makes M-G-M's "Crossroads," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre, one of the year's most entertaining pictures.

The production has pace, balance, suspense and is expertly acted from the leads down to the smallest bit part. Every role is in the hands of an expert. The sure, meaningful touches so necessary for a smart, smooth film are injected in just the right quantity by Director Jack Conway. And the build-up to the smashing and unexpected climax is one of the neatest cinematic achievements of all time. "Crossroads" is studded with big names of the stage and screen. In addition to Powell and the alluring Miss Lamarr, the film has a stunning cast of favorites.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Newest in the succession of screen hits to come to the Bristol Theatre is "Moonlight Masquerade," which opens a two-day run.

Headlining the cast are Dennis O'Keefe, Jane Frazee, Betty Kean, and Eddie Foy, Jr., Erno Verebes, Paul Harvey, Jed Prouty and Franklin Pangborn have important featured roles.

One of our most versatile and popular actors is Lyle Talbot, starting in the dramatic war-time thriller, "They Raid By Night," due at the Bristol Theatre today.

SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

FOREIGN SERVICE
Gifts of candy should be kept at two pounds or under, I understand, and the Candy Dept. at Snellenburgs (1st fl., Food Dept.) has just the right sort of package. The protective round box is gay, red tin, and the flavorful candies are, every one, wrapped separately. They are both filled and hard, and of the sort that are the least likely to deteriorate on route. I am told that the boys like to shove handfuls in their pockets and nibble at them throughout the day. Sent free to any boy in the Service, anywhere. Only $2.19. How many lonely, candy-hungry boys can you think of? Be generous!

SOMETHING NEW is Plante Girdles is to be had at the Snellenburg Notions Counter, 1st fl., in sizes 26 to 30. It has a nylon crotch, if you please, made so as to avoid chafing. It is a handsome little garment, with nylon elastic sides and firm satin front and back. The high front is boned merely to keep it in place. The back is low. It is extremely well made, and has removable garters. The same model comes in a non-pantle model. Really, this new garment at only $3 is quite a find. Remember, not the Corset Dept., but the Notions Dept., 1st fl. "Miss Feldman" will give you expert fitting advice.

PREVENT COLDS with plenty of warm, light-weight bed coverings. Just now you can get a specially priced all-wool comfort, prettily covered with satin, for only $5.95. Just the thing for the children's beds, or for any bed needing a practical coverlet. The flowered materials have predominating colors of rose, blue, green, and rose dust. Cut size 72"x 84". Folks are flocking to buy 'em — hurry! Go where? Snellenburg's 2nd fl. Bed Coverings Dept. Had a personal idea? Why not buy an extra one for a really needy person? House temperatures will be lower this winter.

YOU'VE WANTED a dress which has a look of expensive simplicity. In Snellenburg's College Corner, 2nd fl., you can find just the thing for only $10.95. In sizes 9 to 15. Made of lovely, soft cashmere, in natural, taupe, violet, or red. The material consists of 68% wool and 32% rabbit. The combination is delightful. Swank, grain bindings, rayon lapels or elegant necks, elbow-covering sleeves. Treat yourself to a try-on!

Shop carefully in reliable stores where nothing is mislabeled and then "Duration" shopping proves almost as simple as before the War! I'll help! Faithfully, FAITH.

WARMER BLOUSES are those made from the new, heavier rayon gabardine. The 2nd fl. Sports Wear Shop in Snellenburg's has some man-tailored women's shirts of this material, priced at only $2.98. Long sleeves and reverse collars. Lovely high shades, including the darker tones. Worth seeing and slipping into! To complement them are colorful plaid skirts, pleated or kored, labeled for $3.98; 24" to 30" waist measure. Good for class, business, or suburban wear. Nice ensemble.

BULB CONSCIOUS gardeners, inside or outside variety, should meet at the bulb racks in the Snellenburg Garden Corner on the first floor. It's an amazing corner. With me, visiting it has gotten to be a habit. Just now the trend is towards lovely Chinese sacred lilies, because of our great admiration for our heroic Allies. I would like to see a pebble-filled bowl or an earth-filled pot of sacred lilies in every house. They take about eight weeks to bloom and make charming Thanksgiving or Christmas gifts. See this shop's amazing assortment of bulbs, in spite of war conditions. The lilies are only 98¢ per dozen.

KEEP GAUZY in the house even when the garden falls, or, indeed, you haven't any garden at all, nor ever had. You can easily and artistically do this with the exquisite "Porcelana" flowers to be found in the Snellenburg Glassware Dept., 3rd fl. These lovely things looked like genuine flowers dipped in a high glaze. They are semi-flexible and can be washed with a damp cloth. Roses, sweet peas, tulips, etc. Buy for yourself or others! $3.98 to $14.98 a group, but really priceless.

TRY IT—"Over-Tone" to make your skin softly bloom, or to conceal any little defects which bother you! Its experienced makers call this unusual preparation "almost a miracle." It is applied with a bit of cotton and clear water before one's face powder. The reliable old Philadelphia firm—Denny—sponsoring it has another preparation especially for covering really serious blemishes and scars. It will even make chronically red noses beautiful! It is not easily detected and even men use it. Spread the good news. Miss Claire, an expert at the Snellenburg Denny counter (Toilleries, 1st fl.), will advise you about both.

BRISTOL HIGH MEETS CONSHOHOCKEN ELEVEN TOMORROW ON LATTER'S FIELD; MAY NOT BE A LEAGUE GAME

Topping the Lower Bucks County schools over the gridiron week-end is the Bristol-Conshohocken game, scheduled to be played tomorrow afternoon on the latter's field.

Whether the score of this game will count in the Bi-County League has not been decided as Conshohocken has cancelled its game with Morrisville, leaving but Bristol, Morrisville, and Bridgeport in the circuit.

This is the seventh meeting of the two schools, each having won two and tied one. Last season, Bristol's powerful team rolled up a 20-0 score over the Conshohocken eleven which gave the local school the Big Four title. In 1935, Conshohocken beat Bristol, 7-0. In 1937, there was a scoreless deadlock. Bristol won in 1938, 7-6. The score in 1939 was 6-6 and in 1940, the Conshohocken team was the victor, 13-6.

Coach Clarence Bartholomew announced yesterday afternoon that he has picked Claude Camillucci to act as captain for the Conshohocken team. Camillucci is a guard and played fine defensive work against the Bensalem team last Saturday.

Bristol appeared well in its 7-0 victory over Bensalem last week although its passing defense was weak in the first half of the game. However, it tightened in the second half and the Owls did not complete very many passes. The passing from center threw the Bristol backs off form last Saturday, not giving them a chance to attempt their deceptive plays.

After the practice sessions this week, it appears as if the following will be in Bristol's starting lineup: Ends, Plehani and Manig; tackles, Lannucci and Crossan; guards, Camillucci and Smoyer; center, Riebel; quarter back, Johnson; left halfback, Miller; right halfback, Scancelli; and full back, Hajducek.

Bensalem High is idle this week. The Owls originally had been scheduled with Newtown but the latter school discontinued sports. Coach Norm Wetherhold tried to book Upper Merion high school but the arrangements fell through.

Morrisville is entertaining the Burlington High School on the Morrisville field. This should be an interesting game as Burlington has one of the best teams in its section of Jersey. Last week, the across-the-river boys turned in a 31-7 victory over Gloucester. Morrisville has played two games this season. It lost to Trenton, 12-0, and held the Trenton Catholic eleven to a scoreless tie.

Coach Charlie Beck's Langhorne team opens tomorrow, meeting the George School team at George School. Coach Beck has a curtailed schedule and has but two home games booked. Beck is not making any predictions on his club. He had 33 players report for practice.

In his list of players are: Clark, Spadaccino, Cloak, Reed, Knox, Walsh, Salvatore, Flannery, Miller, Hammond, Wilson, McCarthy, Carter, Connolly, Farley, Paul, Richmond, R. Spadaccino, Delassandro, Daugherty, Mucklow, Lukens, Hisey, Hibbs, and Picotti.

In the only game scheduled for this afternoon, St. Francis Industrial School of Edgington will play Malvern Prep on the Edgington gridiron. St. Francis lost to Bensalem, 19-0, in its opening engagement but was very impressive even in defeat, poor punting helping the Bensalemites to score two of their touchdowns while the third was made on a pass interception.

This game will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

"Local Defense Organization" Discussed By Chief Warden Healey Before Volunteer Bristol Workers

"The entire technique of warfare has changed," he said. "And because of the change, new responsibilities have been thrust upon the state and municipal authorities. We have had the experience of England and the opportunity of observation during nearly two years now. We have learned that war can no longer be localized. There is no such thing as a zone of war and there is no such thing any more as a first line trench. And all the rules and customs of nations known to international law and up to this last war observed have been disregarded. In fact entirely eliminated. The result is that every city is exposed to attack, and seemingly there is not such a thing any longer as the rights and protection of noncombatants. The civilian population, men, women and children, are as much exposed as the uniformed forces were heretofore."

fore. That being so, it was natural that in a national defense program, municipalities and states would be called upon to make necessary preparations to meet any contingency."

As in England, the operations of defense plans fall squarely upon local defense organizations. But unlike England, all areas of which are vulnerable to attack by air—or sea-borne troops, the extent and direction of our local defense efforts vary geographically. The seaboard cities and states will have to take more precautions against air raids than the Middle West. The necessity of evacuation may be acute in New York City and nonexistent in St. Louis. The great industrial centers of the Atlantic Coast, where so many of the armaments industries are located, will be especially concerned with defense against sabotage and arsonist. In other cities, in the South, and Midwest, the local defense councils may find that blood donations, training in first-aid work, alleviation of defense housing conditions or vocational instruction of unskilled workers will afford the most worth-while outlet for the citizen's energy.

Now, every community will not need volunteers for all or even a majority of these activities. But despite the variance of the local efforts, there is and will continue to be an overall similarity of organization and procedure.

The emphasis upon local responsibility stands out in every one of these services, as does the reliance of the civilian defense program upon the participation of the citizen volunteer. All are directly related to the great responsibility of the American citizen at war; the development of organized, disciplined co-ordination of national effort to secure the maximum degree of protection and the maximum of individual participation necessary for ultimate victory.

The interested citizen must remember that the rest of the world, and particularly Germany and Japan, has had a long head start. In organizing for civilian defense, democratic fumbling and delay must give way to democratic discipline.

Now, the overall organization of your Local Defense Council will be practically the same whether you live in an eastern metropolis or an inland city of fifty thousand or less. The head of the City Defense Council is appointed by the State Defense Council. To avoid overlapping authority, he is usually the mayor or burgess, as in our case here in Bristol. He selects his council. A typical council is made up of representatives of the police and fire departments, usually their chiefs; the city engineer; the heads of the departments concerned; the presidents of women's auxiliary groups and leading citizens. The Local Defense Council acts as coordinator of the many phases of civilian participation.

Under the defense council, and directly answerable to its head, is the commander of the Citizens Defense Corps. He heads the entire air raid organization of the city or borough. The corps directs the Air Raid Wardens and warning systems, the rescue and repair units, emergency police, the fire fighters, and the emergency medical services.

It is in the Defense Corps organization that the civilian volunteer becomes a front-line fighter. As a warden, a rescue worker, an emergency policeman, an ambulance driver, a member of a first-aid squad, an auxiliary fireman, and in active defense administrative capacities, the average man or woman becomes a vital factor in his or her own community.

On August 13th, Mr. Franklin Wallin was appointed Commander of the Control Center for Zone No. 1, which includes Tullytown, Bristol Township, Bensalem Township, and Bristol Borough. Commander Wallin immediately began the organization of the Control Center Headquarters here in Bristol. At the present date the headquarters is fully equipped and in readiness for operation as soon as the needed personnel required to man the telephones for twenty-four hours every day volunteer their services for this vitally necessary work.

Mr. Wallin is now organizing his staff, which will consist of an Executive Officer, and representatives of the Emergency Police, Air-Raid Wardens, Fire Companies, Medical Corps, Transportation Services, Demolition Squads, Public Utilities, Public Works, Aircraft Warning Services, and last but not least, the Red Cross.

Each one of the Control Staff has his or her responsibilities. The Commander himself is directly responsible for his staff, the messenger service, to be used in case of a breakdown of the telephone facilities, and the drivers of transportation services. The Chief of the Fire Services is responsible for the fire departments, auxiliary firemen and rescue squads. The Chief of the Police Service heads the emergency police. The Chief Warden assumes responsibility for the air-raid wardens fire watchers, and the emergency feeding and housing of raid victims. The Chief Medical Officer sets up the emergency medical services, hospitals, casualty stations, first-aid posts, and sanitation services. The Public Works Chief superintends the repair squads for roads, sewers, water, etc., the demolition crews and decontamination squads, while the Utilities Chief's responsibility includes repairs to all communication systems, together with light and power.

At the present time we have nearly

five hundred emergency policemen especially proud of our wardens and under the direction of County Detective Anthony Russo, while the personnel of the Warden Service is well over seven hundred members. As Chief Warden of Bristol Borough I am aid training, together with the required instruction courses in general subjects, fire defense and gas defense. There are five post headquarters established and fully equipped with the necessary implements, tools and supplies that might be needed in an emergency. Needless to say the members of these posts are very proud of their headquarters, which were made possible by the voluntary contributions of patriotic citizens in the post areas, supplemented by donations of individual wardens.

As some of you may have noticed, the wardens of one sector have placed drums of sand at strategic points in the sector area for the use of the public in combating incendiary bomb fires. These drums were purchased by the wardens themselves and are to be used for the protection of the families in their sector for which they are responsible.

This unselfish devotion to duty is typical of the air-raid warden service, whose chief aim is to assist and protect others, and to educate the public in the correct method of protecting themselves and their property—not by compulsion and force, but by persuasion and example—and when this has been accomplished, with the co-operation of the public, of course, then we will be able to truthfully say that our air-raid warden service in Bristol is 100% perfect.

Tonight, I have endeavored to explain briefly the origin and development of our Civil Defense program to date, and to acquaint those wardens and emergency police present, together with the members of the Red Cross Disaster committee with the tremendous task still before us, of forming our Civil Defense Units into an efficient, coordinated organization.

To you members of the Red Cross, it may seem strange that our services cannot operate as smoothly and efficiently as your several committees; but you must remember that the Red Cross possesses years of actual experience in organization and operation, while Civil Defense is yet in its infancy. It is something entirely new to us and we must learn by the trial and error method. We have made many mistakes in the past, it is true, and we will no doubt make many errors in the future, but we do try not to make the same mistake twice.

That is why we ask the public, and especially you members of the Disaster Committee to show indulgence and sympathetic understanding of the difficulties that confront us, and to offer your most valuable aid, gained through years of experience, to our Civil Defense Units in the organization and efficient operation of their particular branch of service.

In this way only will we, both of us, be able to accomplish our common purpose—the prevention of destruction and the alleviation of suffering. For in this war, it is the purpose of the enemy to cause property destruction and loss of life to the civilian, and we must do everything in our power to frustrate this purpose. Our organizations can do this by planning together and working together and by example, show a world gone mad, that there is one democracy still existent that really operates as a democracy.

Forget your petty jealousies and bickerings, your fault finding and complaining. For in this task that we have voluntarily chosen we must forget ourselves and think and work for others, who through misfortune or disaster are unable to help themselves. If this "one for all and all for one" policy can really be achieved, then and only then, will we be able to say truthfully that our organizations are operating efficiently and wholeheartedly in the war effort, whose ultimate aim is, and must remain, complete victory.

MECHANICAL MIXING

Helps You Get Best Results From Your Grain!

(Shovel Mix)

(Machine Mix)

TWO things are necessary to cash in on the full feeding value of your grain. First, select the proper supplement for the kind of stock you intend to feed. Second, mix the supplement so thoroughly with the grain that every quart of mixed ration is in the same balanced form as every other quart. This is absolutely essential when correct feeding is so vital to the cause of capacity food production today.

Shovel mixing is tedious and cannot possibly provide the necessary uniformity. But accurate mechanical mixing—such as is available to you through our NEW Approved Purina Custom Mixing Service—makes the mixture much more uniform and dependable.

Our Formulas are thoroughly tested and proved for turning your grain into balanced feeds for poultry, hogs, cows and steers. Our grinding and mixing machinery is operated by trained men. Bring in your grain for proper balancing to help step it up to capacity feeding value.
